

It's challenging to make an accurate wavelength measurement with rudimentary equipment. You have to think carefully about the light rays and where they can go. Here are some things to think about:

